“Continuity and Change in US Nuclear Policy from the Cold War to Trump”

“In recent decades, each new President, early in his first term, has conducted a wide-ranging review of U.S. nuclear policies, posture, and programs.” In a joint article featuring Dr. Roberts, “the consensus was that the 2018 Nuclear Posture Review (NPR) recently issued by Secretary of Defense Mattis to be clearly in the mainstream of U.S. nuclear policy as it has evolved through nearly eight decades of the nuclear age.” Join us as Dr. Roberts discusses how the 2018 NPR reflects both continuity and change.

This event is sponsored by GPS's Korea-Pacific Program, and the UC San Diego Political Science Department's Center for Peace and Security Studies \(cPASS\).
